

Every Farmer at some point in life is faced with a life changing decision, his or her retirement and how to plan and create an optimal Transition Plan. Most farmers are not readily equipped with the analytical tools to clearly understand the transition process and how to best construct their individual retirement plan.

As you sit down and try to construct your transition plans you can often be overwhelmed by the vast amount of information that exists out there. How do you build a transition plan that is conservative and thorough in its design, tax efficient, fair to your children? How do you maximize the value of what is usually your single biggest asset, your farm? Do you pass the farm down to one or several of your children or grandchildren or do you sell the farm outright? Most importantly what do you want to do once you are retired? Can you maintain your standard of living? Do you want to remain living on your land or do you plan to move and if so where? The myriad of available transition strategies confuses people and often causes frustration!

Without guidance, constructing your own transition plan can often be like playing the lottery, you never quite know what could be lurking around the next corner. That is why we have created "The Country Farmer's Transition Process" to assist you in structuring your optimal transition plan!

As you progress through our four-stage transition planning process, you will:

- Create your unique transition plan for:
 - Sale of farm and or quota
 - Pass farm on to children
 - Combination of both
- Have a team of wealth management and farm transition specialists at your fingertips. Optimize your tax strategies.
- Integrate our services through your existing accountants.
- Have PEACE OF MIND, knowing that you have successfully setup your transition plan.
